ICS110 : MATHEMATICS FOR THE TRADES

This course provides trades students with an introduction and review of basic mathematical concepts by relating math with events that occur in their lives and on the job site. The course is designed to develop and reinforce students' mathematical reasoning abilities. It builds a knowledge basis for trade students which they can apply in the classroom and workplace. Whole numbers, fractions, decimals, and percentages are introduced, reviewed, and applied to life and job site case studies, also math as it relates to print reading will be explored. events. Measurement in English and metrics are introduced and calculated. Practical geometry statistical analysis is introduced and calculated.

Clock Hours	60
Lab Hours	30
Lecture Hours	30
Semester Credits	4
Prerequisites	None